LOUISVILLE, Ky., Angust 31.—Capt. Ed Howard, of Jeffersonville, has just completed a steamboat for Capt. Thomas G. Ryman, of Nashville, that differs in several features from the "floating paleces" of today. The vessel will engage in the passenger trade of the Cumberland river. In the first place, there is no bar, and no place for a bar on the atoaner. There will be no drinking and no card-playing on this morning, returned at 220 o'clock with quite a string of pickerel. He was well pleased with the day's sport. The point selected was that belonging to G. W. McAdams, of New York, and no one dishes in itexcept on invitation. A country dinnessers in the lower deck to the cabin, his even is attracted by a sign over the entrance dent. A GOSPEL BOAT. steps from the lower deck to the cabin, his eye is attracted by a sign over the entrance door; "Fools make a mock of sin." He goes to the office to register, and while he awaits the pleasure of the clerk, he reads in gill letters a foot high, over the clerk's desk: "Wine is a mocker." In the ladies' cabin are these words. "The cycs of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evi and the good." On the forward bulk-bead in the cabin the sinner learns that "God is singry with the wicked every day." In little racks around the cabin Billies and books of a religious character are placed.

THE CHINESE MISSION RIOTS.

Washington, August 21.—Acting Secretary of State Wharten, in speaking of the troubles in China, said:

"It is a mistake to believe that this government is moving slowly in this matter, and that the same energy displayed by Prance. England and Germany is lacking in the United States. This government his been keeping pace, step for step, with those powers in all movements except one for a proper protection of her citizons in China. The sone exception is the display of haval equipment. The latter is an impossibility. The United States has but two vessels in Chinas waters, and how can she expect to make a respectable showing with those. The navy department has alone all in its power and an ordered three vessels from the Pacific to reinforce the skeleton of a squadron along the Asiaic coast.

"What will the issue be?"

"It will be against Hillism and corruption. I think the Republicans can earry the state on this issue. There are thon sands of voters outside of the Republican party who will vote against the methods of Hill. I certainly see no reasons why the Republicans should not go into the fight with the expectation of winning."

Mr. White said the Republicans were nursed and the people had had enough of Hillism. He tirmly believed that a great reaction had see in against the governor sentor, irrespective of party. It was gathering momentum and should encourage all people who loved a clean government.

Archison, Kan., August 21.—The storm reged here with terrible fury. Roofs were blown off, windows blown in, and trees, fences and buildings blown down. The roof of the Odd Fellows hall was carried away and the regalia and other property on the top floor was rained by water. Blair's flouring mill was unroofed, the old street car barns blown down, and the girls' dormitory of Midland college demolished. The front of Urich & Neal's planing mill was blown in. The Congregational church lost its spire, and Lane's livery stable was partially destroyed.

Several people were injured during the e Several people were injured during the storm by flying timbers and failing glass. The most seriously injured were the 10-year-old daughter of Fire Marshal Compton, cut about head, neck and shoulders. Clarence King, terribly cut about the body by falling timbers, John Roper, a laborer, arm broken and head crushed. Many cellars were flooded. Total damages placed at $50,000. At Liberty the storm played havoc with fences, outbuildings, orchards and growing corn. No one injured.

INTERPLANET SIGNALING.

A Woman's Prize of $20,000 for the Person Who Shall Find a Way. A French nun has bequeathed 100,000 francs to the Academy of Science, to be given as a prize to any one who shall discover any means of communicating with another world, planet or star. The planet Mars was suggested in the will as the most convenient heavenly body on which to

"This proposition may seem ridiculous, but it is not any more so than the lifes of James Lick, the founder of the Lick observatory," said a man well versed in starry

"The Lick bequest to build the great telescope was intended to establish the fact whether or not the moon is inhabited. Now let us consider the difficulties in the way of this project. The distance of the earth from the moon may be stated in round numbers as 240,000 miles. It is a fact recognized in military science that a man can be fairly distinguished by the eye at a mile's distance. In making calculations regarding vision it is the general rule to necessary to place, say, three objects in view of the moon's people-let them remain for a time arranged at the angles of a triangle. Then they might be changed so as to be in a straight line. The man in the moon, seeing these phenomena, might conclude that there were intelligent beings on earth and arrange for some corresponding signal to the inhabitants of earth. But, while this seems possible, it shows how preposterous would be the attempt to de termine with the most powerful telescope now in use whether the moon is inhabited. 'Now, as to the proposed communication with Mars. At the time when Mars and the earth are nearest to each other-are in perihelion—the distance is in round num-bers $5,000,000 miles. Take half this distunce and you have 17,500,000 as the num ber of yards that represents the size of an object in Mars that could be seen that distunce with the naked eye. Divide this by 2,000, the power of the biggest telescope, and you have 8,750, the size of the smallest object plainly discernible at such a dis tance with the telescope. This is equal to about five miles.

"An object in the planet Mars could be perceived as a little larger than a dot with the aid of the largest refractor and under the most favorable, in fact absolutely per fect, atmospheric and other conditions, if it was five miles in diameter. This is when the planet is nearest to us. On the other hand at that time nothing on the earth could be discerned from Mars, because the earth would be in a straight line between it and the sun and in the blaze of the sun's light. An inhabitant of that planet would have to wait until the earth was in some other part of its orbit, and the distance is tween the earth and Mars would then be many times as great as in perthelion

So it would be necessary to construct an object, to be discernible on the earth from Mars, say, twenty miles in diameter. It might be circular in form. Other struc-tures not inferior in size would have to be erected at distances of not less than twenty miles from each other. Then, after these had remained for a time, their relative positions might be changed. These bodies, moreover, to be clearly distinguished from the surface of Mars must be intensely luminous. A solid ball of electric light twenty miles in diameter would suffice.

"Considering the size of the structures required, their distance from each other. and the necessity of changing their places ininous structures were the result of inteligent action and not natural phenomena, the sum bequeathed by the French nun may be seen to be greatly juadequate. The Academy of Sciences at Paris may for this reason refuse to accept the bequest. If the sum were offered for a prize essay on some plan for accomplishing communication with a sister sphere it would be more rea-
